battered, and his body one mass of blood.

One of the men ran up to the Franklin Square station, and a call was sent out for an ambulance. The body was taken to the Oak street station.

Just how the unfortunate man was struck could not be ascertained. The belief among the three trackmen was that either the driving rod or the steps of the engine struck Frazer, caught his clothing and carried him along, bumping his head on the track. It was also believed that the wheels of the second car passed over his body, but an examination by the Coroner may alone determine this.

Frazer had been some time in the Company's employ, and was not married.

Mr. Grout read from a typewritten copy in which he charged the Board of Aldermen with purposely keeping their proceedings in the dark and declared that the action of the Rallroad Committee was illegal, corrupt, and fraudulent. Mayor Boody asked Mr. Grout if he could prove his charges.

Mr. Grout referred the Mayor to the minutes of the Board of Aldermen.

He further said that the Aldermen had secretly received bids for those franchises from the rallroad companies, but had failed to notify the Union Street Company or give them a chance to compete in bidding for the franchises.

with the absence of any outcry, puzzled the three men. Maher glanced after the receding train and was horrified to see it drap Frazer's body on the track midway between Peck slip and Heekman street.

The three men rushed down the wooden pathway between the tracks to the body, but when they reached it life was extinct. Frazer's head was bruised and hattered, and his body one mass of blood.

One of the men ran up to the Fact. The crowd at the track yesterday had very little to say regarding the Suburban. All agreed that Lowlander won on his merits. The race was singuiarly free from fouls or crowding, and no one can venture the opinion that the choices might have done better. It was simply the case of a good horse being underestimated. Lowlander is a sufferer from rheumatism, and the weather affects him just the same as it does a human being afflicted with that boneracking disease. The scorching weather of Tuesday suited Lowlander to a dot. Had the weather been a triffe raw and cold the chances are that he would not have been in the first three.

speed and never will have enough to beat such a sprinter as Sarah Ramey.

From sunrise yesterday until after the shades of night had fallen stables from St. Louis, Latonia, Hawthorne, Garfield Park and elsewhere poured into the Washington Park (Chicago) track. Among the earliest arrivals was the St. Louis detachment of the Santa Anita string, while the latest were the Bashford Manor people, with their Derby candidate. Plutus, and Eugene Leigh, with the latest Derby certainty, Clifford. In consequence of the heavy rain on Tuesday the outside track was closed yesterday, and what there was of galloping was done on the inner track. None of the Derby horses attempted to do fast work, but Keene's mighty pair. Chorister and St. Leonards, attracted a great deal of attention. Dr. Knapp, while satisfied with the appearance of his coit, G. W. Johnson, does not seem to think that he has a cinch on the race. Dick Havey returned from St. Louis yesterday with Floodgate.
